I've been a post-doc at BNL for a little over a year. I'm working as a part of the NSLS-II design team, doing accelerator physics research and support for the project.

While the research opportunities at BNL are wonderful, the life as a graduate student or post-doc can be hard and isolating. ASAP can help bring us together, and has been an important part of my life while at BNL. As a board member, I would try to keep this organization vital. I plan to stay involved with our monthly reading group, and would encourage and help organize similar community building activities.
