

Daniel Marx

ASAP Secretary

I am a postdoc in the recently-formed EIC directorate, working on the accelerator design of the electron storage ring. I joined BNL in February 2020, so I only had a few weeks to experience the lab in person before we all started working remotely. Nevertheless, I was able to attend one evening social event organized by ASAP, and I have attended a few virtual events since then as well. Looking forward, it is clear that in-person events are still some way off, and ASAP will need to focus on virtual events for the time being. That requires us all to think outside the box to organize new types of events. Now, more than ever, it is important that we stay connected and form connections with others at the lab. ASAP has a key role to play here, and I'd like to do my bit to make this happen.