ARIA DA CAPO

GOING HOME

These are the one-act plays you will see on Theatre Party nights, Dec. 11 and 12. Brief description follow:

Every married couple has known what it is to have visitors drop in on an evening when other plans were in order. The ensuing strain in getting rid of them for that particular evening without offending them is sometimes exhausting. We believe "Going Home" will strike a responsive chord as we see Ed and Virginia Sayre exercising ingenuity and tact to ease out Virginia Hogan and Murrey Goldberg, the respective couples. The situation is complicated some what by the romantically inclined offspring, Margaret Carter and Bob King. An amusing play.

"This Property is Condemned" is a sharp character portrait of a girl who starts, as the saying goes "with two strikes on her." Tennessee Williams is a master at getting his point across. Fat Hughes is the girl and Doug Clareus the boy.

Edna St. Vincent Millay is the Author of "Aria da Capo" which should be guarantee enough that it is worth seeing. In this delightful fantasy, she comments on mans predilection to self frustration by not learning from his mistakes. You will see and hear Audrey Agnew, Dan Tosteson, Marshall Bull, Joe Fleck and Don Fluke interpreting for you the ideas of the articulate Millay. This must be seen to be appreciated.

Tickets available from all Theatre Group members and the Recreation Office. Sixty cents each including Tax.
