"The Connection" is a film that deals with a unique theme in a non-conventional and exceptionally frank manner. Its subject is drug addiction and its locale is a Manhattan loft apartment where eight addicts are gathered, waiting for their "connection" to make a heroin delivery. To make payment for the delivery, they have allowed a would-be documentary filmmaker to photograph them while they play jazz and relate anecdotes about themselves and their backgrounds.

The actors perform with brutal clarity, and the camera of Arthur Ornitz succumbs to the squalid room. The dialog is not without its humorous moments, containing considerable wry wit.

Since its release, "The Connection" has been the center of a censorship battle because of the repeated use of a four-letter word, a term used by addicts in referring to heroin. However, as the New York Supreme Court expressed it, "In most instances, the word is not used in its usual connotation but as a definitive expression of the language of the narcotic. At most, the word may be classified as vulgar, but it is not obscene."

"I found it fascinating as an exhibit of bravura film-making ... it does not compromise or sensationalize. The four-letter words are there when they have to be there, when the characters would use them naturally ..." (Director) Clarke has done an extraordinary job of cinematizing the original material. Holding to the single setting of the play, her picture becomes a documentary-life investigation of the flat and its inhabitants. As in Antonioni's films, the camera insists that we look ...

DECORATIONS HIGHLIGHT SUCCESSFUL DANCE

Through the fog came BNL's 400 to enjoy BERA's Valentine Dance last Friday evening.

There were nothing but raves from the attendees for the marvelous decoration job performed by our Utilities Group. The next committee presenting a dance will have a difficult time to im-

Co-chairs were Rad Sprague and John Scandizzo were ably assisted by J. O'Reilly, A. Falango, J. Cizek, J. Kampe, R. Galowski, G. Meyer, R. Marks, J. Disparti, E. Tank and B. Christoffersen - all members of their major committee. Other helping hands too numerous to mention piled in to make the evening a delight. BERA orchids are due the entire Utilities Group for their excellent presentation of the festivities.

The laugh of the evening came when Joseph Rose awarded the door prize to Walter Tramm and it turned out to be a golden "plumber's helper!!"

Who's next? BERA is planning two summer dances and we need two groups to present them. Call George Sabine for details and join the growing honor roll which now includes the Bubble

BOWLING SPECIAL EVENT: FINAL RESULTS

With his high individual gross game of 269, Dick Cloke won the $25 Savings Bond first prize in the Special Bowling Tournament sponsored by the BERA Bowling Board.

The champagne winners were as follows: Flo Weiss, Alice Alberico, John Richter, Ed Yost, Irving Singer, Bill Kolmer and Joe Radacy.

the Lab. Each student, selected on the basis of scholastic standing and interest in science, was furnished with a kit of information on nuclear science and technology.

Following an introductory address by Assistant Director Dr. R.C. Anderson, the students were divided into groups of four or five, and each group was assigned to a scientist working in a field in which the students had expressed particular interest. They visited the laboratory of their scientist-host for discussions about his work and his research tools and techniques.

Chamber Group, Supply and Materiel, Medical, Electronics, Physics Design, Personnel and the Utilities Group.

SPECIAL EXHIBIT

BERA CONCERT SERIES
THE FESTIVAL WINDS

Tuesday, February 23, 1965 8:30 p.m. The Brookhaven Center

The Festival Winds group fills the need for a permanent organization of virtuosic woodwind players to perform great masterworks of woodwind literature. The group has been honored by invitations to perform at the Library of Congress for the past four seasons and has been greeted with great enthusiasm. Other performances have been given at the Metropolitan Museum and the Currier Gallery in New Hampshire.

The members of the group are Melvin Kaplan, oboe, Morris Newman, bassoon, Charles Russo, clarinet, and Ralph Froelich, French horn.

The program will include works by Stanizzi, Beethoven, Havaness, Auric, Stravinsky and Mozart.

Admission charges are as follows: Adults, $3.00; Children (under eighteen years old), $1.50; and Non-employee Guest, $3.50.
