DIRECTOR'S OFFICE WINS WOMEN'S BOWLING CHAMPIONSHIP

Leave it to the ladies to furnish excitement!

Battling for the 1948-1949 Women's Bowling Championship, the Director's Office team nosed out the Fiscal team to win by the slim margin of five pins. This victory gives the Director's Office two legs on the Championship plaque and one more successful season will give them permanent possession of the trophy.

Tied at one game each, the two teams rolled the third game amid much squealing and other feminine expressions of excitement. In the ninth frame of the deciding game the Fiscal Team led by three marks and with butterflies in their stomachs the gals chalked their thumbs and prepared for the pay-off.

Eileen Hanley, for the Director's Office gals, came through with a double strike in the tenth and Carol Gerard, of the same team, held the edge over Eleanor Kwiatkoski, to give the Director's Office the decision.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

In olden times names meant something--usually designating the occupation of the individual. It is interesting to note that the Head Dietician for the Medical Department is named Miss Susan L. Lamb and her assistant is Miss Mary K. Hamm.

THEATRE GROUP PRESENTS "THE MALE ANIMAL" NEXT WEEK

The Brookhaven Little Theatre Group will present the Broadway hit, "The Male Animal", at the theatre on Thursday and Friday, June 9 and 10.

Last January, the Laboratory players produced an original musical comedy entitled "Life and Half-Life," but their offering next week comes from the professional and facile pens of James Thurber and Elliott Nugent.

"The Male Animal" concerns a young, married professor at a mid-western university who becomes enmeshed in a series of hilarious battles for his domestic happiness and his academic freedom. Cartoonist

Thurber has carried his War Between the Sexes to the stage and playwright Nugent has given human and likable characterization to the bewildered males and the "unreasonable" females.

Tommy and Ellen Turner, the characters around whom the plot revolves, are played by Andrew McReynolds and Dorothy Fiala. Others in the cast are: John Binnington, Jean Snover, James Atherton, Stanley Kramer, Adele Stemmler, George Cox, Annie May Gilbert, Robert Engelken, Lila Snow, Saul Harris and Donald Howard.

 JUNE 11

Mr. Richard Vogt
 Brookhaven Laboratories
 Camp Upton, L.I.

Dear Mr. Vogt:

We wish to express our sincere thanks for the wonderful cooperation your organization gave us during the winter months of bowling on our alleys. You and your groups displayed a spirit of good-natured rivalry that was a delight to bowlers and spectators alike.

We trust that we will be in a position to serve you again-- come this Fall.

You can rest assured that we are always at your service at all times.

Sincerely,

Carmine Cardamone

Lives of scientists remind us,

We may seem like awful dubs,

But we don't have to explain the atom

To Rotarys and Women's Clubs.

"Hearth and Eagle" - by Anya Seton --

Only old timers will remember Mrs. E.D.E.N. Southworth, so for the benefit of the younger generation, let it be here recorded that in her books an expression like "the grim mask of passion" would pass unnoticed. Had it appeared in the early chapters of "Hearth and Eagle", this review would not have been written.

This, perhaps, is the worst expression used in the story, but in keeping with it there are outlines of seven births, one still-birth, five violent storms, two fires, three battles with the waves, one act of adultery and one coy suggestion of incest.

With these interesting (?) events, Anya Seton has put together (not in the best Joseph C. Lincoln style) a story of New England, which follows the life and fortunes of one Hesper Honeywood (male) who lived in Marblehead, Mass.

The story opens in 1846 with a flash-back to the 17th century, which brings in an interesting description of the first settlers of the town. Hesper's lifetime covers the period when the fishing industry died out as the town's main source of profit, to be replaced by shoe manufacturing and then by summer boarders and tourists.

A fairly interesting story with plenty of action, but Mrs. Southworth could have done a better job with the material used.

Today is the day to prevent accidents, not tomorrow.
